P.G. Police Operations Eased With Electronic Improvements

The Central Communications Center of the Prince Georges County Police Department, considered by many to be one of the most intricate and sophisticated communications operations on the East Coast, became operational in November, 1967. While it is still not completed to final plans specifications, the improvement and smoothness of operation over the old system is almost phenomenal, according to county officials.

In a plain, oblong red brick building in Seat Pleasant, a handful of men daily perform electronic tricks for the protection of the citizens in the 486 square miles of Prince Georges County.

Seated at the multi-paneled U-shaped control board, they push buttons, answer telephones and talk softly into mini-microphones. In the subdued lighting of the room, the translucent light-pointed map in front of each man starkly shines out.

Prior to November, dispatchers were literally becoming gray-haired old men overnight in trying to get messages through to vehicles on the overcrowded radio waves and through the crossed over maze of telephone lines.

Faced with the problem of a growing department in a burgeoning County and its myriad communications problems, the Police Department was able to obtain two additional police radio frequencies from the Federal Communications Commission.

With the four radio channels now assigned them, the Police, for greater ease of operation, divided the County into a Northern and Southern district, using Central Avenue as the dividing line and allocating one channel to each district. Another channel was allocated to the use of the detective bureau, the town police and County departments. The fourth channel is reserved for County-wide emergencies.

24-Hour Operation

Central Communications operates naturally on a continuous basis and is manned by a supervisor and six radio dispatchers on each of three shifts. Two dispatchers are assigned to each of the three control panels and are completely responsible for the control of the vehicles and communications in their sector. A large translucent map in front of the dispatcher lets him know at a glance where each car is and which cars are in service. When a car is dispatched to a particular location or is sent on assignment, the dispatcher takes an IBM card from the rack beside him, time-stamps the time of assignment and transfers it to the action file. On completion of his assignment the patrol officer reports back and the dispatcher then reverses his actions.

Library Card Use Extended

Effective on July 1, the possessor of a library card issued anywhere in the state may borrow books and other materials from any public library system in Maryland.

The new service will give library borrowers an opportunity to become acquainted with many of the specialized collections developed by various public libraries in the state, such as Edgar Allen Poe Room and Collection (for reference use only) the H. L. Mencken Room and its reference collection, and the Maryland Room, with historical materials for circulation, at the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore.

A brochure on the reciprocal borrowing and the enlarged inter-library loan program, listing the addresses and telephone numbers of the public libraries in Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City, will be available at all public libraries soon.

Meeting for Participants In Labor Day Festival

Every organization taking part in the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival should be represented at the meeting to be held on Tuesday, July 9, at 8 p.m. at the G.H.I. Hospitality Room. The general purpose of this meeting will be to coordinate all activities and set up schedules for the four-day period in which the Festival will be held.

The gala Parade will be held on Monday, September 2, and will start at 10 a.m. promptly. Those interested in participating in the Parade must contact Chief H. John Crisman of the Greenbelt Fire Department (P. O. Box 35) before August 15. Parade line-up will begin on Ridge Rd. near North End School, between Laurel Hill and Research.

Organizations wishing to participate in any other aspect of the Festival activities must submit their intentions in writing to the Festival Committee, P. O. Box 2.

County Surtax Increases From 20 to 45 Percent

The increase in the present County surtax on the State income tax from 20 to 45 percent — was made necessary by the adoption of a 1968-69 Prince Georges budget of $176.3 million last week. At the same time, the county commissioners reduced the real estate property tax from $2.90 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.88.

The $176.3 million budget represented a drop of $1 million from that originally proposed. Most of the cut came from the Board of Education portion, which accounts for about 71 percent of the total budget. Included in the cuts was $400,000 in grants to the Community College and the remainder in construction monies for schools behind schedule.

The commissioners also voted to increase the recording tax on deeds from $1.10 to $1.65 per $500 sale price on real estate.

According to GHI manager, Roy Breashears, in the opinion of the judge, "GHI's mutual ownership contract is not a land installment contract so that Smith could never get the deed."

City Notes

All members of the Greenbelt City Council, the City Manager, and his Administrative Assistant attended the annual conference of the Maryland Municipal League, held on June 23-25 at Ocean City. Topics discussed were gun control legislation, the conducting of city council sessions, procedures in securing federal grants for urban renewal, new laws concerning police aid and training requirements, audio-visual training devices for police departments and labor-union relations for municipal workers. The conference sent back to committee for further study proposed changes in the State constitution.

On June 27 two planning officers from Vietnam, one from Brazil, and one from Korea met with City Manager James K. Giese for instruction in municipal finance. Giese found them more interested in the layout of Greenbelt, in its organization and structure, than in purely fiscal matters.

Although the final accounting of the fiscal year just completed will not be available until fall, Giese predicts that the city of Greenbelt may "probably realize a greater budget surplus than previously estimated." This assessment follows the receipt last week of estimated income tax money from the State's allocation. This amount was $12,000 over the budget estimate.

The recent heavy rains have made extra work for the Public Works Dept.: frequent cleaning of catch basins of washed down sand and leaves that clog them, causing flooding of the streets; replacement of dirt for the playing surfaces of Braden Field (hailed from the rear of the firehouse); and improvement of the drainage area near the band stand at the Lake Park.

The city crew has also installed playground apparatus and park benches at various locations, set up a chemical toilet at the North End playground at the top of Ridge Rd., repaired two cinder block experimental trash enclosures, sealed joints in the swimming pool deck with a special rubber mixture, and sprayed for poison ivy and poison oak at various locations throughout the city.

Throughout the summer there will be a park attendant on duty at the Lake Park every day of the week. He will operate from a truck or tractor and will be responsible for keeping the park clean. He will also enforce park regulations.

A new janitor, John W. Lawless, has been hired for the Municipal Building and the Youth Center.

At the firehouse they completed the final subgrading for the new parking lot and also repaired an under-drain to carry off spring water. The contract to pave the parking lot was let at a recent city council meeting to the A. H. Smith Co. for $1,794. The work is expected to be performed soon.

As of last week four summer crew members have been added to the Public Works Dept. Five more young men will be hired later.

The display, costing about $1,500, will include the traditional American flag, as well as a Double Wheel, Saxon Square, Niagara Falls, Airplane and Battleship, Travelling Rats, Donkey Finale, and others. They will be supplied by the Zambelli Fireworks Company which furnishes the fireworks at the Washington Monument.

Extra policemen will be stationed at the lake to direct traffic and patrol the crowd. City Manager James Giese reminds the public that alcoholic beverages are prohibited, as is the use of fireworks by spectators.

A limited number of parking spaces will be available on Crescent Road, in Boxwood Village, and at the small lakeside parking lot. Giese recommends, however, that residents walk to the lake if they can, to avoid the traditional traffic.

In the event of rain, the fireworks will be postponed from day to day, and will be shown on the first day that the weather permits.

Athletic events scheduled for the Fourth included horseshoe and ping-pong tournaments. The horseshoe men's singles (16 years and older) will start at 10 a.m. at the Braden Field pits (registration at the Youth Center at 9:30 a.m.). The ping pong tournament for teens will start at 1 p.m. at the Youth Center.

Saturday Events

On Saturday, July 6 at 2 p.m. at Braden Field, the finals of the Men's Slow Pitch Softball Tournament will be played. Greenbelt's "Brass Lanterns" will be competing against the Clancy's for the Championship. A record-breaking 200 spectators turned out for the games last weekend.

A bright new teenage glee club called "Sing-Out-Baltimore" will sing folk and contemporary songs at the Lake-Park bandstand on Saturday, July 6 at 8 p.m.

FOURTH OF JULY EVENTS

10 a.m. Horseshoe Tournament, Braden Field Pits (sign up at 9:30 at the Youth Center).

1 p.m. Ping Pong Tournament, Youth Center.

7:30 p.m. Band Concert, Greenbelt Lake Park.

Dark Fireworks Display.

Hello From Judy in Alaska

If you have yet to visit the 49th state and wonder what it looks like, you may get some answers from Judy Holland of 13-S Ridge Road. Judy, a resident of Greenbelt and employee of Goddard for quite a few years has recently moved to College, Alaska. In a letter to her friends at Goddard, she described some of her experiences as follows:

I arrived safely without too much incident. Seattle was cold and rainy and so was Fairbanks when I finally got here. People keep telling me it never rains in Alaska. Sure! Like last summer it never rained. The effects of the flood are still being felt; for instance, telephone lines that got wet and then froze. From the erratic behavior of the phones, they never unfroze. My particular telephone has nervous hiccups. It gives short little rings and slides all over the desk, when I pick it up there's never anyone there. Anyway, the weather is warm (too warm) and sunny now. I had to go out and buy some summer clothes. It's hot here. There's no air-conditioning in the building, of course. Right now, there's a fan on the floor, keeping my ankles cool, but not the rest of me. The cord isn't long enough for me to put it on a table, and I can't find another one.

The flight from Seattle to Fairbanks was very interesting. Not just for the Gold Rush theme they keep playing up. I think all Alaskans read too much Robert W. Service. The usual safety instructions in Alaskan Airlines are in, you should excuse the expression, "verse". For example, "In your seat, please firmly sit and make sure your seat belts fit." I not only had to listen to that leaving Seattle, but again when we left Anchorage. Bleah!

My office is very colorful. The chairs are orange and the file cabinets are blue and white. (But there aren't enough of them — naturally). The people are very friendly and seem to be terribly afraid I don't know what I'm in for when winter comes. I've been receiving all sorts of instructions on how to get to work (ski), how to keep my car going (just don't turn the motor off — ever), how to keep warm (the thickest fur parka you can buy) and how to pass the cold winter evenings when you can't go out (take a drink).

So Called "Highways"

The area around Fairbanks is very beautiful. The very high mountains are quite a way off. The immediate hills look very much like the ones in Virginia. I can see Mt. McKinley from my office window. I've taken several drives in the surrounding countryside, on what are rather optimistically called "highways". Alaskans don't waste their money on pavement. The Steese Highway is 1 mile of gravel and 100 miles of dirt. On the way is the town of Fox. Again the overly optimistic use of a word. Fox consists of a general store, a bar, three houses and an apartment house that looks like a shoe box with windows. Last Saturday, on a drive along the Nenana Road, we had a flat tire, miles from nowhere. No jack of course, and we had to walk about a mile to somebody's homestead to get help. And me in high heels. When people speak of the "unspoiled Alaskan countryside", they mean houses without indoor plumbing, no agriculture at all, moose and caribou hogging the roads, and some of those roads little more than dog tracks.

Alaskan Wildlife . . .

The mosquitos here are not only numerous, but I understand there's a special branch of taxidermy that specializes in stuffing them for museums. I have a running war with them. When I first arrived, somebody presented me with a beautifully wrapped package of mosquito repellent. I've been advised never to walk anywhere without it.

I've also been up to see the Musk Oxen. Big deal! They look like haystacks with legs. I was taken up to the Institute of Arctic Biology one day last week. When I was asked if I would like to go I thought "Oh, goody! Here's my chance to see some real Alaskan wildlife". The first animal I saw was a kangaroo!

I had a little trouble getting used to the long hours of daylight. It doesn't get dark until around 3 in the morning. It seems funny to look at your watch at midnight and see the sun still shining brightly. Around the end of June, we go to 24 hours daylight. Oh, joy!

... And About Judy Herself

Judy, who has worked at Goddard Space Flight Center and whose furthest venture westward has so far been a steamboat trip down the Ohio river, will work during the next year at the Geophysical Institute of the University of Alaska in College, a suburb of Fairbanks. She will be the secretary of Professor Neil Davis, Assistant Director of the Institute, who is active in the research of the polar aurora, including an attempt (sponsored by NASA) to create a small artificial aurora by means of rocket-borne equipment.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Judy is a long-time resident of Greenbelt and member of the first graduating class of St. Hugh's. She recalls the time when St. Hugh's school was not yet ready and classes were held in the Greenbelt Theatre, as was the Sunday Morning Mass. She later graduated from the Notre Dame Academy in Washington. Many Greenbelters remember her from her appearances with the Greenbelt Players, including the central role of Romaine (the wife) in "Witness for the Prosecution."

Thomas C. Williams

Thomas C. Williams, age 89, died last week. A patient at the Greenbelt Convalescent Center since last fall, he is survived by his daughter, Mrs. John P. Murray, 159 Westway, grandsons Dennis, Terry and Timmy, granddaughter, Mrs. Joann Hite and two great-grandchildren.

Successful Evening

To the Editor:

The June 7 G.C.S.-sponsored "Inner City Projects" Benefit Concert at Grace Methodist Church proved to be a successful and entertaining evening. The proceeds, combined with the Christmas tree sale, will enable five persons to receive scholarships to the Co-op Institute.

Our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Teddy Murray, 159 Westway, who lost her dad, Thomas C. Williams.

A Greenbelt family touring the Finger Lake region of New York state was looking for a supermarket in Ithaca the other day. After criss-crossing the town several times in a futile search, they gave up and headed out of town, determined to patronize the first country store they saw. But when they rounded that last curve on the edge of town, what did they see but a big Coop store, complete with its twin-pines emblem! Indeed, it turned out that this was a distant relative of the Greenbelt Co-op — except that where ours has grown to be a great enterprise, the Ithaca Co-op, built in 1949, is still the only one in that city. Its manager, Robert Brill, is well acquainted with Greenbelt — having been here in a Co-op conference three years ago — and sends his regards to all his friends here, especially to Ben Rosenzweig, Bruce Bowman and Jim Cassels.

Specialist 4th Class Patrick Cummings, son of Evelyn Cummings, 2H Plateau Place, has returned to Vietnam after 30 days leave at home.

Cummings was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division during his first tour. His next assignment will be with a Helicopter Company near Saigon.

Congratulations to Alexis Esther Pogorelskin, 9-G Ridge, who received a Master of Arts degree from Harvard University at commencement exercises on June 13.

Congratulations also to the following graduates of the University of Baltimore: Steven R. Dolgoff, 6000 Breezewood, B.S. in Business Management; Robert M. Greene, 3-K Eastway; Martin A. Heilman, 6108 Breezewood; and Lewis H. Zarfoss, 6164 Springhill Terrace, all earning the LLB degree.

Chairmaine S. Yochim, 408 Ridge, librarian at the Prince Georges Community College, was appointed chairman of a study group of the Maryland Association of Junior Colleges which will investigate areas in which Maryland's two-year college libraries can develop co-operative ventures.

She received a diploma for her work in the Legal Secretary field. Miss Barr, a 1966 graduate of High Point High School, is currently employed by Stevens, Davis, Miller & Mosher.
